Remarks

All prices are mentioned including exam fees or translator services. A price between brackets () means an optional item.

After two failed practice exam you will have to take 6h courses before being allowed to take a new practice exam and you will have to take this exam with the driving school. The Risk perception test being the first part of the practice exam, a failure to this test counts towards this total. Therefore it is highly recommended to prepare well before taking the practice test.

Be careful! Don't let your temporary license expire. An expired temporary license = 6h courses and taking the practice exam with the driving school... (or do all over again 3 years after the expiration.) In addition to that, you will have to take 6h courses for every failed practice exam.

(*1) New rules for the new temporary driving license delivered after 01/11/2018. (If you exchanged a previous 36 months temporary license the older date is kept) Regarding temporary licenses delivered prior to 01/11/2018, the old rules are still applicable except the Risk perception test which is mandatory for all.

(*2) If you are domiciled in another region:

In Flanders: 9 months of training period minimum! You don't have access to the 30h-direct exam package.

In Wallonia: The certificate of driving competence is delivered by the exam centers.

(*3) 30h practice at minimum and direct access to the practice exam. You may take the practice exam directly after 30 hours of practice minimum. There is no temporary driving license or training period, and you have to take the practice exam with the driving school too. Mind the fact that you still have to successfully pass the exam... If you are skilled and/or able to handle the stress, it might be enough. If you failed, you could still get a temporary driving license (using the certificate of driving competence) and practice by yourself, the 30 hours lessons were then worth taking.

The price for 30h of practice lessons is: (1575 €)
